Change Overview

- The existing connector housing design requires moisture conditioning to avoid damage during the assembly process. The revised design is a permanent change that eliminates the potential damage and the need for moisture conditioning.
- There is no impact to part fit or function. There is a visual difference between the existing and revised connector housing where plastic has been removed for the relief slot.
- There is no change to finished goods part numbers.
- This change will be done as a running change. Customers may receive existing and revised design parts during the transition period as existing inventory is exhausted.
