General Product Description:
RT555 and RT-790 Heat-shrink Tubing, -55 and -790 Molded Parts

Description of Changes
This notice is to inform you that due to enforced changed by vendors of raw materials, TE Connectivity is reformulating the compounds used to make RT555 heat-shrink tubing, RT-790 heat-shrink tubing, -55 molded parts, and -790 molded parts. As safety is our highest priority, TE is also updating the internal manufacturing process for these compounds. Legacy equipment used in the compound manufacturing process has been decommissioned and replaced.

Reason for Changes:
Product improvement.RT-555 and RT-790 heat-shrink tubing as well as -55 and -790 molded part products are manufactured from raw materials sourced from external vendors and several vendors have obsoleted materials used to make these products. Each obsolete material is being replaced by an equivalent material with the same CAS #. Also, mixing equipment previously used in the compound manufacturing process has been decommissioned. The process has been transferred to a more modern machine with goal of improving the safety of the process. These changes will follow our defined change procedure to maintain safety, quality, compliance, form, fit, and function. We understand this product reformulation and validation may impact your operations, and we appreciate your understanding. Once available, First Article Inspection and validation test reports will be made available upon request. For any questions and/or further information, our Product Management team will be pleased to assist you.
